ROB DRAY

Good evening and welcome to what we hope will be a packed out Cygnet Healthcare Stadium to all Peacocks fans as well as to Chris Hargreaves, his players, management team, staff and the fans of Yeovil Town for tonight's Emirates FA Cup 4th Qualifying Round Replay.

Saturday at Huish Park, the game ended in stalemate, we were definitely the better team in the first half of the game against the National League outfit, but they grew into the game in the second half and a draw and tonight's replay was probably the fair result.

There is not better time to play at the Cygnet than under the lights and what a great occasion this promises to be, with a ball in the hat for the FA Cup first round proper. You can bet with this prize on the line that we are going to be in for a fantastic game of football, where it could come down to a tiny mistake or a piece of magic.

Everyone here tonight for the team in claret and blue we need you to be at full volume throughout, the boys feed off the positive energy provided by you guys in the stands and we need it more than ever tonight as we want to be that team in the hat for the first round draw.

Enjoy the game and.....Up the Peacocks!

The Away End

YEOVIL TOWN

Yeovil Town were formed in 1895 with the club initially joining the Somerset Senior League, nicknamed "The Glovers" due to the long history of glove making in the town. The club first got promoted to the Conference after finishing as champions in 1987-88, before eventually getting relegated in 1995.

It was in 1990 the club moved into their current home 'Huish Park', with a capacity of 9,565. Much of the club's success has been in this stadium and is also home to the clubs Ladies team.

The Glovers then got promoted again two years later after winning the Isthmian League again. The early 2000's was a particularly success spell for the club, winning the 2002 FA Trophy Final and were promoted to the Football League for the first time in the 2002/03 campaign under Gary Johnson's management. Winning the League Two title in 2004/05 as the club continued it's rise.

Yeovil then went onto the reach the Championship after victory at Wembley in the League One play-off final in 2013 with Johnson back in charge of the club. Successive relegations followed as the club spiraled down to now find themselves in the National League 6 years later.

ONES TO WATCH

Josh Staunton

The versatile man has been known to play in both in the defence and in holding midfield roles.

On the final day of the 21/22 season, Staunton was the interim manager of the club. Leading the team to a 1-0 victory over Altrincham, becoming the youngest manager to ever win a National League game.

Sam Pearson

The exciting attacker is a product of the Bristol City academy.

He made his debut for the Robins in March 2021, and has made a total of five apps in the Championship.

A Wales U21 international, Pearson has made 11 apps for his nation, finding the back of the net against Bulgaria.

EMIRATES FA CUP 4th QUALIFYING ROUND - SATURDAY 15th OCTOBER 2022

VENUE: HUISH PARK - ATTENDANCE: 3,093

The Peacocks are in the hat for the FA Cup 1st Round Proper for the third time in seven seasons after a professional performance saw them gain a deserved draw at Huish Park. The visitors looked much the better side in the first half before the National League team upped their level after the break but had no change from a superb Town backline.

The Peacocks quickly went about dispelling the memories of that afternoon in Kent seven days earlier with a really positive start. Ollie Chamberlain's lofted pass set Nick McCootie free, but his centre was overhit and a Lloyd James free kick was swung in and met by the head of Jarvis whose effort landed on top of the net. Stearn then latched onto a Jarvis touch to burst into space and fire wide of the target before Nick Grimes' deep ball was knocked down by Stearn and fell to Jarvis who saw his shot blocked.

The Peacocks continued to play with a refreshing vibrancy as a James strike from the left was deflected over for the first corner of the match after 13 minutes. Then came the moment three minutes later that nearly sent the away support, numbering just shy of 1000, into raptures. McCootie laid the ball out to Chamberlain, his cross found Jarvis who directed a header goalwards and Stearn intercepted to volley against Grant Smith's right-hand post.

Little had been seen of Yeovil in the final third, the Peacocks being untroubled by their initial long ball approach, with their first meaningful attack taking 22 minutes to materialise, Grimes heading clear a threatening Morgan Williams cross. The home side began to gain a foothold in the game, with Jack Bycroft managing to hold Matt Worthington's awkwardly bouncing cross before home keeper Smith was called into action at the other end, palming over Chamberlain's 20 yard drive after a James free kick had been cleared to him.

Another effort from the dynamic Chamberlain then passed well wide before the game swung the other way for a period, Yeovil making some inroads but creating little of note. Skipper Josh Staunton headed a Sam Pearson cross well wide, and Sam Perry was unable to get on the end of a Williams centre. The half ended with the visitors back with the initiative, pressurizing the home goal after winning a couple of corners as the opening 45 concluded with Town well in contention.

The second half began with the Peacocks on the attack, a Jay Foulston shot being blocked and Lee Lucas' looped follow-up effort proving easy pickings for Smith. Whatever Glovers' manager Chris Hargreaves had said to his team in the dressing room though seemed to work to a degree as the hosts started to attack with greater purpose. Worthington drove forward to find Williams who neatly turned and fired in a strike which Bycroft touched over, his first and only real save of the afternoon. Charlie Wakefield moved in from the left to drift a 25 yarder over while Worthington posted two efforts, his first being deflected just wide and then drilling a shot over after collecting a Grimes clearance.

Despite Yeovil's improvement, Town remained fully in the contest. A patient build-up culminated in Stearn's shot being parried by Smith and scrambled away for a corner, the first of three successive ones for the Peacocks which frustratingly failed to find a breakthrough although the final one of the trio from Foulston wasn't far away from creeping in at the far post. Town then made their first switch midway through the half, with Dylan Morgan replacing Stearn whose vitality had given his side a real boost.

With just over ten minutes remaining, it was another case of what might have been for the visitors when Smith's cross from the left was chested down by Jarvis, having his best game in a Peacocks shirt. However Richards-Everton managed to block his attempt at the expense of a corner.

The Glovers' break from the corner was halted by Lucas' challenge on Worthington, producing the first yellow card of the day. Worthington's free kick was safely gathered by Bycroft before Taunton's Smith was rather harshly booked by referee Middleton who otherwise managed the game effectively. Into the final ten minutes and there was no late onslaught from the hosts trying to avoid a replay three days later. Bycroft held a looping header under pressure from Jake Scrimshaw and Worthington nodded Fisher's knockdown over the top.

Morgan had a shot blocked and maintained the pressure as he did well to wriggle past the Yeovil defence on the right to deliver a cross which Staunton headed away, the attack finally ending when McCootie fired over from distance. A double substitution close to time gave Town fresh legs for the three minutes of stoppage time which were without incident, the only effort coming from Worthington whose header floated harmlessly wide from Owen Bevan's cross. The whistle brought conflicting reactions from the 3093 crowd. Boos from the home fans and deserved applause from the away support for their side who had stuck to their task brilliantly for the entire game and on another day might have won it.

THE NON-LEAGUE PAPER

ESSENTIAL READING FOR FOLLOWERS OF THE NATIONAL GAME

A few years ago, I took on the running of my son's youth football team to save it from potentially folding.

For three seasons, from Under 14s through to Under 16s, the team's coach and I gave the boys a platform to enjoy their football safe, controlled and friendly environment.

They were by no means world beaters but, win, lose or draw, they loved it, as did I, and we all look back on those years fondly with plenty of life skills, both on and off the field, learned.

Without doubt, the most difficult and time-consuming job I had in that time was booking referees. Even though I had a list of qualified referees locally as long as your arm, finding one to officiate our game on a Saturday morning was nigh-on impossible. I'm talking in excess of 50-100 emails per week sometimes until I could find someone available.

At the time, I remember questioning why it was so difficult. Especially for a teen, it kept them involved in the game, it was good exercise and the pay wasn't bad either. I didn't get it.

Until kick-off that was.

Now, individually, and collectively as a team, we prided ourselves on our discipline and I can honestly say, hand on heart, I have never seen, first-hand, any incidents of abuse towards a referee. But, I have heard horrible reports of it happening and I can understand how it does happen. It has to stop.

A shortage of referees leads to a shortage of grass-roots football and, ultimately, in the Non-League game. In short, these young referees learning to officiate at grass-roots level are often promoted up the pyramid into the National League System.

Without them, it would not exist. I mean, would you take verbal, and occasionally physical abuse from players, coaches or spectators for a measly £30? No, neither would I.

With that in mind, I had mixed emotions I read proposals for referees to trial wear body cameras in the adult grassroots game in the first half of next year.

It came following reports that a referee in Lancashire was left with a broken nose, four broken ribs, a dislocated shoulder, a broken collarbone, concussion and whiplash during an alleged attack during a game

In fact, according to Football Association data, there were 11 'serious cases' reported per 1,000 matches, covering assaults, physical contact or attempted physical contact with match officials and discrimination cases.

Last month, the FA have launched its 'Enough Is Enough' campaign to address behaviour within grassroots football, setting out that any unacceptable conduct will result in action being taken.

"The aim of the trial, the first globally of this nature, would be to explore whether the use of bodycams improves participant behaviour, while providing additional safety for match officials in the adult grassroots game," an FA spokesman said.

"We will be tracking the impact of the trial on behaviour and, if it's successful, will look to roll it out nationally and internationally."

Personally, I think it's very sad that football at grass-roots level has to go down this route but if a referee wearing body camera is to act as a deterrent and a means of their protection then the game owes it our whole-hearted support.

The FA's hands have been tied.

It is understood, that even if the trial proves a success in improving behaviour and enhancing safety, the International Football Association Board [IFAB] will be determined to ensure that it is not deployed senior football.

But with reports of verbal abuse towards officials to us at NLP Towers still as rife as ever it's left the lawmakers with a decision to make.

No-one wants to see Big Brother watching Non-League football's every move and taking away its purity but unless we clean up our act from the bottom of our game up, then he may well have to.

Respect our refs, weekends would be very boring without them.

THE UNTOLD GAME

- Black History Month: "The fleet-footed dark girl" -

Emma Clarke's story is one that, for over a century, was forgotten, and her name, important as it is to the history of football, was lost. She should be heralded among the pioneers of the game, alongside Arthur Wharton and Lily Parr, but it wasn't until 2017 that her story was uncovered, more than 120 years after her debut. Without some determined digging by historian Stuart Gibbs, and a stroke of photographic luck, it's possible that she would have gone unremembered forever.

Bootle has a habit of producing footballers. The Merseyside town has been the childhood home of Jamie Carragher, Steve McManaman, Roy Evans, Alvin Martin, and in recent years, Manchester United and England player Alex Greenwood. All of them were preceded, however, by Clarke, who was born there in 1876 to William and Wilhelmina. Like her more famous counterparts, she started her footballing career on the streets, kicking about with neighbours and friends, before being apprenticed to a confectioner at 15. She didn't allow her sporting dreams to end there, however.

In 1795, another footballing pioneer by the name of Nettie Honeyball decided to do something against the derision that women had received in the previous decade. The first ever women's match had been in 1881, and had ended with spectators storming the pitch in anger and the players barely making their escape. Honeyball was a pseudonym that the woman in question - probably Mary Hutson - used to protect herself from that kind of abuse, but nevertheless, she was determined to make her point, and founded the British Ladies Football Club. At the age of twenty, Clarke joined, becoming the first black female player in the game.

Clarke's career for the BLFC is difficult to track, owing to the number of pseudonyms being used and changed throughout the infancy of women's football, and how many of those pseudonyms happen to have been Clarke. But a photograph was taken of the BLFC's first exhibition match, a North v South game which took place in Crouch End, London, in 1895, which proves that she was part of this pioneering event. 10,000 people turned out to watch the spectacle, in which Clarke played (unexpectedly, given her home town) for the South side. It was here that a South Wales newspaper picked her out as "the fleet-footed dark girl on the wing", but in also referring to her as "a coloured lady of Dutch build", who played in goal, causing the confusion as to her identity and a century of her being misidentified as Carrie Boustead. But for the evidence found in the photograph, that would still be the story we believed today.

Her side was on the receiving end of a 7-1 battering, and the comment after the game was not complimentary about women's football in general, suggesting that once the novelty of the spectacle had worn off it was doubtful that there would be much interest in watching the fairer sex compete. But the novelty certainly lasted for a little while, and the BLFC toured the country playing exhibition matches and raising money for charitable causes, playing in front of tens of thousands, and at grounds as impressive as Upton Park and Portman Road.

By 1897, the exertion of travelling in this way had taken its toll on the team and the BLFC stopped playing matches, but the impact had been made and women's football was here to stay. Clarke joined Mrs Graham's XI, a side named for the famous suffragist Helen Graham Matthews, who had played in the North v South match and set up her own team. Clarke continued to play until her late twenties, disappearing from the playing record in 1903.

Sadly, she also disappears from the census in 1905, leading Gibbs to speculate that she died sometime before her 30th birthday. As with most working-class people in the historical record, the details of her life are not recorded and difficult to discover. But Emma Clarke definitely made her mark on history, and helped open up the way for both female and black footballers to ply their trade in the twentieth century and beyond. Forgotten for so long, it's important that these stories are kept alive.

Enjoy the game.
